

BERGMAN GOES TO PRISON.

The Pittsburg Anarchist Gets a Total of Twenty-Two Years for His Attempt on Frick's Life.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 20.—Alexander Bergman, the Anarchist who tried to kill H. C. Frick, was placed on trial yesterday in the criminal court, Judge McClung presiding. Bergman looked well, notwithstanding his confinement, and was cool. He pleaded not guilty to the six charges of felonious assault and battery, entering a building with felonious intent and carrying concealed weapons. He conducted his own case. A jury was obtained with trouble and the case was opened by District Attorney Burleigh.

H. C. Frick was the first witness. He told of Bergman's first visit to the office previous to the shooting, and recited in a graphic manner the story of the attempted assassination. The clothing worn by him on the day of the assault was exhibited and was a gruesome sight. The coat and trousers were bloody and filled with holes. When they were shown Bergman coolly leaned forward, but did not seem to take any interest in the exhibit. He was asked if he wanted to ask any questions, and said:

"I want to ask him if I said I wanted to shoot Mr. Leisner, for I did not."

The witness said he did not know whether he did or not.

"That is all," said the defendant. "I have no more questions."

Dr. Litchfield described the nature of Mr. Frick's wounds. He was followed by Vice Chairman Leisner, the only one present when the assault was made. His testimony was a corroboration of Mr. Frick's.

"Are you sure I intended to shoot you?" asked Bergman.

"Yes, I am, and you said at the preliminary hearing you intended to kill Mr. Frick."

"What you say is not true," answered the defendant.

David Fountain, the elevator man, said Bergman said he did not want to hurt anyone, but he wanted to kill Frick.

Here the commonwealth rested and the judge asked Bergman if he had anything to say. He said he wanted an interpreter. He refused to be sworn, and had a pamphlet, from which he started to read, when the court said: "You need only give the facts."

Bergman: I claim a right to make a full defense, as I have no attorney and no witnesses. Continuing, Bergman said: "I know an example will be made of me for my act and little concern will be had of it, as little as the murder of John Brown and the murder of the five men on the Chicago gallows in 1888. The injustice of the ruling classes is to blame for this. They oppress workmen. I belong to those who were murdered at Chicago. That crime made me think and brood. As the end striven for at Chicago failed when my friends were murdered, so will the ends sought in my case not avail." He had read about an hour when Judge McClung said:

"You must finish by 1 o'clock."

"Well," said Bergman, "I can have all the time I want for my defense and will take all the time I need."

"Well, we will teach you different if you think you can dictate to us," said Judge McClung. "You will have until 1 o'clock; that is twice as long as we would have given your attorney had you one."

"I was told by an attorney I could have all the time I needed," said Bergman.

"Well, he was mistaken," answered the court.

"This is the beginning of the end," continued Bergman. "It is now a war against the present condition of affairs. The rich grow richer and the poor grow poorer, and the end is near. These small strikes will soon end in a large one and freedom to all the workmen in the world will follow, and this great strike is not so far away as you think. In all lands preparation is being made for it. And now for my own acts."

"What were my motives for this crime and what have they accomplished? The provocation was great."

"At this point Judge McClung said: 'It is 1 o'clock; we will give you five minutes more.'"

"I cannot give my motives in that time."

"Well, you must," said the court.

"My reason for the act was to free the earth of the oppressors of the workmen. I wanted to punish him, not murder him. I did not assault Mr. Frick, but the person who oppressed labor. I recognized no man by name, but the cause of the trouble, and I wanted to remove that cause."

Here the court interrupted him. "You have had your time," said the court, "and you must stop. We have been too indulgent."

The case was then given to the jury, and without leaving the box a verdict of guilty was found. The defendant was at once called for sentence, and said: "I did not expect justice and I did not get it."

He was then sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary on the five charges of felonious intent, entering a building with felonious intent, and to the workhouse for one year for carrying concealed weapons. Bergman looked sullen and, throwing back his head, put his hat on and started to leave the room. He was at once taken in charge and removed to jail. An hour later Bergman was on his way to the penitentiary and at 3 o'clock he had donned the convict's garb and begun his long term of imprisonment.

Both Saint and Sinner.

It troubles the sinner and troubles the saint. It's a troublesome, trying and nasty complaint. Don't think it incurable; I tell you it ain't.

Excuse the grammar; it's the truth I'm after, whether grammatically or ungrammatically told. The truth is, that catarrh can be cured. The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offer $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head.

THE SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH—Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in the ears, deafness; breath, smell and taste impaired, add general debility. Only a few of these symptoms likely to be present at once. Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. Only 50 cents. Sold by druggists, everywhere.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

As M. K. & Co. passenger train No. 3, was nearing the city yesterday afternoon, and when just this side of the bridge which spans the Labette creek north of the city, the engine collided with a horse and buggy, in which was seated Clinton Lewis, a nephew of Mr. Lewis of the Crystal Ice Company. The horse and his burden was thrown about one hundred feet distant from the track, and when picked up the boy was found to be dead, with the back of his head crushed. The horse was horrible mutilated, while the buggy was totally demolished. It seems that the train was in full speed and that the lad endeavored to cross the track a few feet this side of the bridge, where a private roadway had been constructed over the track. The engineer did not discover the team until he was so close upon it that it was impossible to prevent the accident. The remains of the boy were brought to the city and conveyed to the undertaking establishment of Moore & Gregory, where they await the disposition of Coroner Miller. The news of the accident spread rapidly and soon a large crowd gathered about Moore & Gregory's to see the dead boy and to hear the particulars of the sad mishap. An inquest is thought, will be held over the remains this morning. Coroner Miller having been notified last night of the accident.—Parsons Sun.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

NEW YORK AND THE NORTHWEST.

The effort to carry the northwest for the democratic candidates deserve the enthusiastic support of every democrat in the country.

It appeals especially to the democrats who urged Mr. Cleveland's nomination, and to the ardent, progressive young men who have recently joined the party in great numbers. The democrats of the northwest are of their kind. They have the spirit and enthusiasm of true reformers. Democratic victory in the northwest would not only add to the strength but to the morale of the party.

First of all the electoral votes of these states are important. Mr. Cleveland's victory should be made as great as possible. The gain of western states to the democratic cause would place the party on a surer basis. It would make the number of its sure and probable electoral votes more in harmony with its popular majority, and would relieve it of the necessity of depending for victory on the narrow margin of four northern states.

New York democrats can afford to render material assistance to the northwestern campaign. They can aid with money and effort, and they can do this without relaxing any of the energies essential to final victory in the promising state of New York. If the democrats of New York stimulate the campaign in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, as they may without neglecting their duty to their own commonwealth, it is almost certain that some of those states will be added to the democratic column.

"Woe and Misery." TO THE GIRL THAT WENT BACK ON THE FELLOW WHO WENT THIS PIECE.

The gallands of hope to ashes are turned, And fancy's illusions laid low, My fondness desires lie shattered and burned By one sure cutting blow.

Did you think, fair lady, when writing those lines That I could ever forget thee? Did you think the love which my heart entwined Could be torn so easily from me?

I submit meekly to thy stern decree, That our lives henceforth must diverge; Though the thought brings pain and agony, And rings through my soul like a di ge.

'Tis a sad thing when any young man, Tired of life, weary disgusted, Loses all that can lift the gloom from life's span, And know that his dearest dream is "nailed."

Yours full of pain and anguish, "W. J." September 20th, 1892.

COL. STONE CONFIDENT.

The Democratic Candidate Says the Party is United.

Colonel W. J. Stone, the democratic nominee for governor, spent the whole day yesterday in Kansas City, says the Times, and goes this morning to Platte City, where he will this afternoon address a democratic mass meeting. To-night he will speak at Weston, and extensive preparations have been made for the meeting. Colonel Stone is bearing up marvelously under the fatigues of the campaign and except for a slight cold he seems to be physically in even better condition than when he opened the campaign by that notable address in the Exposition building in St. Louis.

And he is in the best spirits imaginable. All day long yesterday he chatted with the many callers who came successively to assure him of Jackson county's loyalty and never was there a half hour when he did not drop his private correspondents to receive a visitor. His confidence in his election is supreme, and it rests upon assurances of hearty support which have come unsolicited to him from every section of the state. He does not declare his confidence boastfully; he leaves it rather to be justly inferred from the facts he states, as the sum of his own observation during the campaign and the observation of others in whose candor and perception reliance may be placed.

"Yesterday I spoke at Lexington," he said, "to a great audience. There was no mistaking the heartiness of the welcome old Lafayette gave me there. Then with Tarsney I rode over to Mayview and at 5 o'clock spoke to a mass meeting of the people in the streets. Last night I spoke at Odessa and was greeted by a splendid pouring of the people, who had made elaborate preparations for the event. The town was splendidly illuminated with a profusion which made the night seem day. Why, even the little girls were clad in uniforms," and as Colonel Stone spoke of them there came a tender light in his eyes and his face brightened wonderfully at the pleasant recollection.

"The audience was an immense one and no one could doubt the sentiment of the men who composed it. So it is everywhere; I don't want to seem to discriminate as between any of the cities I have visited by mentioning the meetings in but a few. Everywhere I have been the same warm welcome has met me; everywhere the same large outpourings of people have characterized our democratic meetings. The democrats are very much in earnest this year. My observation teaches that and that is the teaching of the observation of all the state speakers. The members of the state committee have encouraging reports to the same effect. Everything looks very hopeful for the democratic cause and aside from my own candidacy I am exceedingly gratified to note it."

A Good Awakening!

"When in the dark, on thy soft hand I hung, And heard the tempting siren of thy tongue— What flames—what darts—what anguish I endured, But when the candle entered—I was cured."

Such complexions as so many of our young ladies possess—dull, pimply, and covered with sores and blackheads, is enough to cool the ardor of the warmest lover. To such young ladies we would say, that you can never have a soft, fair, smooth, attractive, kissable complexion, unless your blood is healthy and pure, for the condition of the blood decides the complexion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will purify your blood, tone up your system, and drive away those distressing headaches and backache, from which you suffer periodically, and give you a complexion a lily or rose-leaf might envy.

SUITS THEM ALL.

Senator Hill's Speech an Unqualified Success.

New York, Sept. 21, 1892.—Senator Hill's speech was the one of topic of conversation in democratic circles yesterday. It was received with the greatest satisfaction everywhere. At democratic national headquarters everybody was in good spirits over the rousing meeting in Brooklyn last night. Chairman Harrity said he was much pleased with Senator Hill's address.

"All friends of good government," said Mr. Harrity, "and all friends, therefore of democratic principles, will join me in praising Senator Hill's speech for its cordiality of tone and for its very able and lucid exposition of the tariff and force bill issues. It is an admirable address and will prove a very effective campaign document."

Chairman Smalley of the committee on speakers was also enthusiastic in his praise of the speech.

Chairman Don M. Dickinson of the Campaign Committee is at Gray Gables. Mr. Cleveland will, it is thought, return to New York with him for a conference with the Democratic leaders. He will come by the Fall River boat, due here at 7:30 o'clock to-morrow morning. He will make his headquarters at the Victoria Hotel.

Chairman Quincy of the Committee on Campaign Literature said: "I can best express my opinion of the speech by saying that I have already ordered 100,000 copies of it to be printed for the National Committee. It will do a great deal of good among our people."

J. J. Richardson of Iowa, member of the Executive Committee of the democratic National Committee, said: "It will add very greatly to the strength of the party by showing the perfect accord between the party leaders of the state in theory and doctrine as well as in party action."

Mr. Richardson added that Senator Hill's endorsement of the tariff plank of the Chicago platform was the best argument that could be made that the people of New York, as represented by the democracy, demanded a reform of the tariff.

Speaking of the situation in the west, Mr. Richardson had this to say: "If Iowa receives the same attention from the national democracy that other states have, I think it will give a handsome majority for Cleveland and Stevenson. In a person wants to see real enthusiasm he should meet an Iowa democrat. The democrats of the state are just as enthusiastic and industrious as they were a year ago when they carried the state for the second time and elected Governor Boies. The party is stronger than it was a year ago, so that I regard the chances now of carrying the state better than they were when Gov. Boies was last elected. Cleveland is intensely popular in Iowa, whereas, Mr. Harrison is very unpopular in his own party. Iowa is a Blaine state. Had Mr. Blaine been the candidate it might have been carried by the republicans; but as it is I cannot believe that Harrison has much chance. Gov. Boies and all the democratic leaders are working just as hard as if they themselves were personally interested in the result."

Senator Hill will speak in Buffalo on Saturday night next and will get a tremendous ovation there. Great preparations are making for the reception. Next week he goes south to make speeches in Virginia and South Carolina. Early in October he will speak in this city, in E. Mira, Syracuse and other places up the state.

A WONDERFUL MIRAGE.

The City Which Indians Say Was Built in The Clouds.

Many stories have been written about mirages and delusions, but none have been more interesting and curious than that of the Silent City mirage, which makes its appearance near the Pacific glacier in Alaska.

The discovery of this wonderful mirage was made by the Indians, who would tell of the city which was built in the clouds. The mirage can be seen in the early part of July, from 5 to 6 p. m. It rises from the side of the Pacific glacier. It first appears like a heavy mist, and soon becomes clearer, and one can distinctly see the spectral city, well defined trees, large spires, huge and odd shaped buildings, which appear to be ancient mosques or cathedrals. It is a city which would seem to contain at least 25,000 or 30,000 inhabitants. As yet no one has been able to recognize the place. There is no city like it in Alaska, nor in any country about it for thousands of miles. Some claim it is a city in Russia, others say it is a city in England, but none can tell what or where it is. The mirage was given the name of the "Silent City," as it appears to one like a dead city; there is nothing that would indicate it is inhabited.

CALLING FOR JUDGMENT

N. Y. World: It is the democratic national committee this time which issues an address of congratulation to the country upon the results of the September elections.

And the committee is quite justified in interpreting these results to mean "that the strong tendency of public sentiment is with the democracy, and that the people of the country are prepared to enforce rather than reverse the verdict which they rendered in 1890."

This verdict was repeated in a sufficient number of states last year to have given the presidency to the democrats had that office been at stake.

The condemnation by the voters of the high tariff, the billion-dollar expenditures, the Force bill, the pension frauds and all the other bad features of the republican record has been emphatic and continuous.

The appeal this year is simply for final judgment upon the verdict. And the elections thus far held indicate that the final order to the republicans to "Get out!" will be entered.
